

Perspective use of solubilised cellulose in microbial fuel cells (MFCs)

Renata Toczyłowska-Mamińska
Warsaw University of Life Sciences, Poland

The results obtained for a cellulose-fed MFC indicate that solubilization of cellulose substrate markedly improves current production. The phenomenon is likely caused by better substrate availability for the bacteria.

